Thornbury Analytics

Confidential Information Memorandum

B2B Software — Insurance Technology / Pricing and Risk Analytics

United Kingdom

SYNTHETIC TEST FIXTURE. This company does not exist and every figure in this document is invented.

1. Executive Summary

Thornbury Analytics provides subscription software that helps mid-market insurance brokers price and monitor commercial risk. The platform ingests policy and claims data, applies the company's proprietary scoring models, and returns pricing guidance and portfolio exposure reporting.

FY24 revenue from continuing operations of £15.1m, representing growth of 31% over the prior year.

Commercial broking remains substantially manual. Pricing decisions rely on individual underwriter judgement, with limited portfolio-level visibility of accumulating exposure.

A hosted platform replacing spreadsheet-based rating with governed, auditable models, deployed alongside existing policy administration systems rather than replacing them.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

2. Investment Highlights

Gross revenue retention. Gross revenue retention of 94% in FY24

Net revenue retention. Net revenue retention of 118% in FY24

Customers. 214 enterprise customers as at 31 December 2024

Top 10 customer concentration. The top ten customers represent 31% of ARR

Average contract value. Average contract value of £66k

Employees. 126 full-time employees across two offices

Deployment measured in weeks rather than quarters; no replacement of the incumbent policy system; model governance reporting aligned to FCA expectations.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

3. Business Overview

A hosted platform replacing spreadsheet-based rating with governed, auditable models, deployed alongside existing policy administration systems rather than replacing them.

Expansion within existing broker groups, entry into the Irish and Benelux markets, and a claims analytics module scheduled for release in the second half of FY25.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

4. Customers and Commercial Model

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

5. Market

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Support operates during business hours in the home market with an on-call rotation covering out-of-hours incidents affecting production availability.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

6. Financial Summary

The table below presents historical and forecast results. All figures are stated in GBP millions unless otherwise indicated.

	Actual	Actual	Actual	Forecast	Forecast	Forecast
GBPm	FY22	FY23	FY24	FY25	FY26	FY27
ARR (year end)	7.0	10.2	14.1	18.7	24.3	30.2
Turnover	8.2	11.6	15.4	20.1	26.0	32.5
Recurring revenue	6.1	9.0	12.3	16.5	21.8	27.9
Services and other	2.1	2.6	3.1	3.6	4.2	4.6
Cost of sales	(2.6)	(3.5)	(4.5)	(5.7)	(7.2)	(8.8)
Gross profit	5.6	8.1	10.9	14.4	18.8	23.7
Total overheads	(5.5)	(7.7)	(9.9)	(12.3)	(15.2)	(18.0)
Exceptional items	0.3	0.4	0.5	0.0	0.0	0.0
EBITDA	0.4	0.8	1.5	2.1	3.6	5.7

Forecast periods reflect management's current operating plan and have not been audited or independently reviewed.

7. Management

Founder-led. The chief executive and chief technology officer co-founded the business in 2016. A chief financial officer joined in 2022 from a listed insurance services group.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The qualified pipeline across the EMEA region stands at £9.7m of annual contract value, weighted by management's own probability assessment.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

8. Process and Timetable

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Appendix A — Customer Contract Summary

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix B — Technology Architecture

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix C — Information Security and Compliance

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix D — Intellectual Property Register

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix E — Employee Census and Remuneration

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix F — Property and Lease Obligations

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix G — Insurance Cover

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix H — Environmental, Social and Governance

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix I — Litigation and Contingencies

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix J — Regulatory Correspondence

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix K — Historical Funding History

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Appendix L — Glossary of Terms

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Engineering, product and customer success functions are organised into cross-functional teams aligned to customer segments rather than to components of the platform.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

A land-and-expand motion is evident across the broker groups, where an initial deployment in one trading division typically extends to two or three further divisions within eighteen months.

The largest contract signed to date carried total contract value of £3.4m across a five-year term.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

The competitive set divides between incumbent policy administration vendors extending into analytics, and smaller specialists. The company positions itself in the latter group.

Onboarding a new customer takes six to ten weeks, of which the majority is spent on data mapping rather than on configuration.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The company sells directly in its home market and through two referral partners in continental Europe. Partner-originated business carries a commission recognised over the life of the contract.

Research and development tax credits of £0.4m were recognised in the most recent financial year and are presented within other income.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Industry consolidation among brokers has produced larger groups with more complex portfolios, which management identifies as the primary structural driver of demand.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

Deferred income at the most recent year end stood at £5.8m, reflecting the annual-in-advance billing convention applied to the majority of subscription contracts.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The company maintains a delegated authority matrix reviewed annually by the board.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Sales cycles average four to seven months for new logos and under sixty days for expansion within an existing group.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.

Management sizes the addressable market at £4.2bn, comprising commercial broking technology spend across the United Kingdom, Ireland and the Benelux region.

Release cadence is fortnightly, with feature flags used to stage changes across the customer base. Rollback is automated.

Contracts are typically written on three-year terms with annual uplift provisions linked to a published inflation index, subject to a stated cap. Renewal is by default rather than by re-tender.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

Board meetings are held monthly against a standing agenda. Committee structures are limited to an audit committee.

Regulatory attention on pricing practices has increased the willingness of brokers to invest in documented, auditable rating processes rather than spreadsheet-based methods.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

The largest single account contributes £2.1m of annual recurring revenue and has been a customer since 2018. No other account exceeds six per cent of the total.

The company raised £6.5m in a Series A round in 2019 and a further £14.0m in 2022. Both rounds were led by institutional investors who remain on the register.

No related party transactions have been identified beyond directors' remuneration disclosed in the statutory accounts.

Adoption in the Benelux region is judged to lag the United Kingdom by approximately three years, which management presents as a timing opportunity rather than a structural difference.

Staff turnover has averaged eleven per cent over the last three years, below the sector benchmark cited by management.

Pricing is per seat with a platform fee that scales in bands by gross written premium. Management notes that the banding has not been revised since 2021 and considers this an area of opportunity.

Working capital is modestly negative on a normalised basis, reflecting the billing convention described above.

The board comprises the two founders, the chief financial officer, two investor directors and one independent non-executive appointed in the prior year.